The first mohair sale of the 2024 summer selling season kicked off in an incredibly positive way with good demand for all types of mohair. Quite a different vibe compared to the last six months of 2023. On average the market price increased with 9%. Compared to the same sale a year ago, we are about 6% under the levels of a year ago. The current sale was quite a big sale compared to what is normally offered in a first sale, that also might have an effect. On the positive side, it might be a blessing in disguise. We all remember that the summer season in 2023 started with a blast for the first three sales and then demand tapered dramatically downward. Not all the buyers are also participating yet. Mohair is coming in quite fast, and the next sale will have the full component of seven hundred lots on offer. That will be a good test for the market. With more mohair available we need all the buying houses to participate in the saleroom if we want to keep to the current price levels. The best price of the day went to Murray Danckwerts of Danckwerts Livestock Farming of Fort Beaufort for a good style, 24-micron winter kid. Congratulations on your R705.10/kg! The next sale will be offered in the Port Elizabeth Mohair Exchange on the 5th of March 2024.
